MAR 2 1986

Nurse goes back to school

Susan Harrison, a nurse at Beyer Memorial Hospital, tells kindergarten students at Rawsonville Elementary School about her job during "I've been back to School" day held recently. The program, held throughout the Van Buren school district, drew community members back to school to learn what happens in a classroom these days.

Press Photo by Vaughn Gurganian

vists start interpreting constitutions want it in inches. And when you can say that's not exact urate to a millimeter. There's the fact that no one knows apart they are to argue as if t three blocks apart, or more s apart, then you are lying — cial activism as deep thinkers that Supreme Court Justice played when he said, "We ly what the Framers thought punishments' were"— as he penalty decision as "un-rs of the Constitution clearly the death penalty. They ex-the death penalty in other ent.

nat ratified the Constitution laws. The first Congress that itution also passed federal — afterwards.

The most famous — or notorious — Supreme Court decisions of the past generation have had no relationship to any of the many changes that have occurred since the Constitution was written.

Death penalties are still death penalties, abortion is still abortion, segregation is still segregation, libel is still libel, and arresting a criminal is still arresting a criminal. And lying is still lying.

STOP
SMOKING
IN 5 DAYS